

Nashville Print Revival II

Feb. 17-22, 2014

Visiting Artists

Heather Freeman will conduct a 3-d modeling workshop using Google Sketchup. She will teach students how to model and export stills of their models and explore different ways of folding them into paper sculptures (from straight digital prints, to converting them to vectors for laser cut intaglios or reliefs, to mixed media things, to photo lithography)

Michael Krueger will be working with the Vanderbilt Department of Art students to edition a new print. The print will be a large scale multi-color screenprint, printed using a large one arm vacuum press.

Blake and Hannah Sanders of Orange Barrel Industries will be discussing working collaboratively. Blake will be doing a lithography demo and Hannah will be working with textiles.

Heinrich Toh will be working at Belmont utilizing mono printing, collage and photolithography.

Ashton Ludden will demonstrate copper plate engraving & printing at Belmont University.

Kelsey Taylor will demonstrate the relief process at Plaza Artist Materials.
